Most U.S. importers are completely unaware of the financial risk they are undertaking when purchasing foreign goods subject to antidumping (AD) and countervailing (CV) duties. In such cases, additional duties may be due months to years after the goods have cleared. Companies are often shocked to learn that they still owe thousands on shipments that have long since been delivered.

Don't let this happen to you! Watch this webinar to learn how to avoid being caught off guard by a hefty antidumping or countervailing duty bill.
