Basic But Practical Series

Many businesses try to train personnel with a class here, a webinar there, and hand-me-down presentations. Under such a disconnected patchwork of training solutions, an employer or compliance manager cannot depend on those employees having a sufficient understanding of the issues necessary to maintain compliance.

Our webinar series solves this problem and is designed to provide importing and exporting entities with a way to give their employees a systematic and complete course of training. The Basic But Practical series consists of 20 webinars on U.S. Import Regulation and 10 webinars on U.S. Export Controls over an 18 month period. This comprehensive series was created to help your company prevent legal problems before they occur by providing a close review of U.S. Import and Export regulations from the various perspectives of government regulation, audit and enforcement, and corporate compliance. Participation in this webinar series is an exceptional way to prepare anyone within your business or organization to identify and understand legal issues, and to avoid penalties, detentions, seizures, criminal sanctions, and other enforcement consequences related to violating U.S. trade regulations. The course is taught from the perspective of not only the importer or exporter but also from the perspective of governmental regulators and enforcement officials so that your compliance team can see your compliance efforts from the eyes of the government as well.
