The Floodgates Are Only Cracked.
Understanding the Scope of Sanctions Relief

You've seen it in the news. Companies are excited because the U.S. government has taken unprecedented steps to reduce trade sanctions on Cuba and Iran. Before your clients start booking shipments (and vacations), you will want to clarify that the floodgates are not wide open just yet. While there certainly are new opportunities, the carve-outs are specific and measured. In this session we will discuss the real trade climate with Cuba and Iran. We will work through real-life case examples to help you spot issues and give your clients solid guidance.
