Job Description / Responsibilities / Requirements

The Division Trade Compliance Lead plays a crucial role in ensuring that the SSO Division adheres to all applicable U.S. Government laws and regulations, alongside Parker's own policies and the aerospace industry's standard export and import practices. This position demands a deep understanding of the import and export processes, regulatory frameworks such as Customs, ITAR, EAR, and FTR, and a keen ability to assess and manage risk. As an empowered official, the lead is tasked with securing necessary licenses and agreements from key U.S. Government bodies, including the State and Commerce Departments, ensuring these are executed in line with strict regulations and company standards. The role involves comprehensive oversight of SSO's trade compliance program to guarantee compliant importation and exportation of hardware, technical data, and software, leading investigations into any potential regulatory breaches or policy violations and providing guidance on various trade compliance related matters such as document legends, records retention, and Deemed Exports. Additionally, the lead serves as a mentor, offering vital export compliance training to staff within the Division to foster a culture of compliance and awareness.
